

Why teams stop running retrospectives

Retro fatigue sets in when the same problems are raised every fortnight and nothing changes.

Teams that keep no record of what was said last time end up relitigating it, which is its own kind of fatigue.

A retrospective is only worth running if someone can point back at the last one and ask what happened to it.